Buone Feste

A black and white line drawing of a large choir of people singing from sheet music. The drawing is composed of many individual faces, each with a unique expression, some looking towards the viewer and others towards the sheet music. The style is simple and expressive, with bold lines and minimal shading. The choir members are arranged in several rows, creating a sense of depth and a large group. The overall composition is dense and lively, capturing the essence of a musical performance.
